

User journey: Job seeker

FOR CONSULTATION ONLY

The Remote Jobs and Economic Development Program will create jobs for people looking for work

I want meaningful work

Job seekers want to find meaningful and culturally-safe employment with pathways to progression.

They want to learn and earn on their Country and receive tailored support. They want fair pay and conditions so they can support themselves and their families.

I need a hand

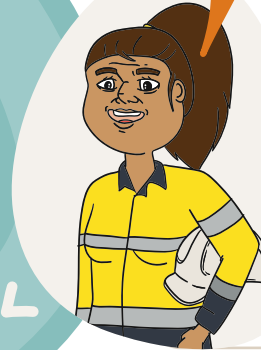

Job seekers are supported by a remote employment service to get them ready to work – like training, help with job applications and getting a tax file number.

I'm learning new skills

Employees receive on-the-job training, cultural mentoring and upskilling.

I got a job

Job seekers move from a remote employment service into a real job created by RJED employers. Employers provide wages and conditions, and allow flexibility for personal, family and cultural commitments.

They may continue to access other Government supports, like Centrelink, NDIS, housing and medical.

I've got a real job, new skills, fair conditions and pay

Employees work in culturally safe workplaces with fair pay and conditions. They have new skills that will help them in employment long-term.
